

Manila, December, 2018

It is nice to be back in my other "home". Buzzer, my dog was happy to see me again and even more happy when I had a bone with me :-). He now has a little brother: Woody. They love to play together.

Getting used to the heat again, took a while. Also for my body to figure out when it was time to eat, wake up and sleep.:_)

Meanwhile life is back to normal...

Home assignment

I look back to a time of beautiful encounters with friends, family and supporters, wonderful walks in autumn nature and despite emails and facebook, a bit of distance from the work here.

I was able to help in Wageningen with the annual pancake campaign for my work here.

It was super cozy and there was a Filipino couple who came to visit in the Netherlands and were invited by a Russian volunteer :-). Wageningen remains an international city!

Mr. Henk Schipper from Veenendaal is still busy writing books and having them translated. One of his books was distributed to nearly 500 leaders in the Philippines. It was special to hand him a copy, just before his 90th birthday!

Enthusiastic reception of the books.

I was allowed to share something in different churches and schools of what is happening here in the Philippines.

I have been able to meet many sponsors and prayer partners and had meetings with OMF, GZB, ZWO and TFC ... Yes, also during home assignments there have to be meetings.

But we also had a debrief time with other missionaries together, conversations at the OMF and GZB offices and of course time with my TFC. Later in the letter you will hear something from them.

I was able to travel back and forth to Jakarta and Samar Island in that one month that I am back. In Jakarta there was a conference for chaplains for Dutch people in foreign prisons. We were able to learn a lot about visiting (there are currently 11 Dutch people imprisoned in the Philippines). Since this conference was subsidized by foreign affairs, we lacked nothing. :-)

In Samar there is now a new church building, a pastor and elders are installed and both churches were able to grow

Through a mass-wedding there are again quite a number of couples now officially married. For many Filipinos in the urban poor or remote areas, it is difficult to officially marry, because they have never been officially registered at birth, or because they married before age 25 and needed parental consent, but who lived too far away to visit, or lack of finance for the papers, etc ...

Our team there now helps them with the paper work. The government made a building available and someone else lent nice clothes! Another gave nice things to eat. It was a beautiful day!
